EMOTIONAL INTELLIGENCE

Contribution to Self and Collective Performance

Emotional intelligence (EI) is a set of abilities to understand emotions of self and others and use that knowledge to understand and manage others for superior performance. Emotional Intelligence competencies like self-awareness and self-control enable us to display intentional instead of impulsive behaviors and enable us to improve personal effectiveness and results.

EI Competencies like Social Awareness, Empathy, Inspirational leadership, Teamwork, and Influence ensure superior interpersonal behavior and leadership abilities that contribute to improved team/unit/organization performance. Therefore, Emotional Intelligence is not a buzz word but has its grip and importance firmly established in the business lexicon.

ABOUT FEIL

Forum for Emotional Intelligence Learning (FEIL), a non-profit registered society, was created in 2008 by a group of eminent academicians and professionals committed to building caring and compassionate Leadership.

We believe that leaders must appeal to the heart and the head because the best decisions happen through qualitative links between passion and logic. We found that Emotional Intelligence is the ability to functionalize such links.

We are convinced that performance is influenced by inspirational leadership and needs to be communicated beyond the organization. The leadership team at HPCL collaborated with the Tata Institute of Social Sciences to spread this message with the first Global Forum on Emotional Intelligence at Mumbai in January 2008 with delegates from the USA, Europe, India, and other Asian countries..

FEIL is committed to helping organizations change for the better by encouraging executives and people to develop and improve Emotional Intelligence for enhanced social awareness and relationship management resulting in better and motivating work places. FEIL is committed to bringing people and organizations to align and integrate personal accomplishment with organizational success.
